1. _____ United Nations Millennium Summit. This largest-ever gathering of world leaders adopted the United Nations World Summit Declaration, which spells out values and principles, as well as goals in key priority areas. World leaders agreed that the UN's first priority was the eradication of extreme poverty and highlighted the importance of a fairer world economy in an era of globalization.
2. _____ World Summit on Sustainable Development held in Johannesburg, South Africa. World governments, concerned citizens, UN agencies, multilateral financial institutions, and other major groups participate and access global change since the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development (UNCED) in 1992.
3. _____ Third World Trade Organization Ministerial Conference held in Seattle, Washington, U.S. Thousands of demonstrators take to the streets to protest the negative effects of globalization and growth of global corporations, and along with deep conflicts among delegates inside scuttle the negotiations. The first of many such anti-globalization protests, they signal a new era of confrontation between disaffected stakeholders and those in power.
4. _____ The Marrakech Accords, agreed to at COP-7, finalize how the Kyoto Protocol should work, lay the groundwork for ratification by different countries and mark the conclusion of a process begun at COP-4 in Buenos Aires.
5. _____ Almost half of the world's population now lives in cities that occupy less than two per cent of the Earth's' resources.<sup>16</sup>
