HOMEWORK

1. It is recommended that you assign this activity to your class prior to starting Unit 1. Give your students two weeks to complete the assignment adequately.
2. Divide your class into groups of four and hand out Worksheet 5 and 6
3. Assign each group one of the following sustainable development events:
 - UN Conference on Human Environment*
 - Our Common Future: Brundtland Report*
 - National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy
 - The International Institute for Sustainable Development
 - Agenda 21*
 - The 1992 Earth Summit*
 - UN General Assembly review of the Earth Summit Progress (RIO +5)
 - The 2002 World Summit on Sustainable Development*

Depending on your class size, you may not be able assign all events. The events marked with an asterisk are most important. If your class is bigger, the following additional events can be assigned: (The Kyoto Protocol (<http://www.iisd.ca/linkages/csd/ungass.html>), The Environmental Sustainability Index <http://www.ciesin.columbia.edu/indicators/ESI/>)

4. Hand out the summary sheet "The Timeline of Sustainable Development" (See Appendix 2)
This sheet will provide your students with a summary of the evolution of sustainable development and also suggests websites where more information can be obtained.
5. The assignment is as follows:
Identify the contributions made by your assigned event to sustainable development strategies and evaluate their economic, environmental and social impacts. Use the sustainable development criteria provided as a guideline for evaluation (See Appendix 3). You may also want to look at Appendix 7 on Canada's Sustainable Development Objectives.
6. In the third unit, the groups will be asked to display their work in sequential order so that the sustainable development timeline is clear. Therefore, the groups should present their findings, keeping in mind that they will be displayed on the wall.
