

WEB RESOURCES

Lesson Plans

Global Connections

<http://www.globaled.org/curriculum2.html>

13 lesson plans developed for the American Forum for Global Education. Topics include: Democracy, A Global Perspective on Fast Food History, Comparing Cultures and Modernisation, the World Trade Organisation.

Global Economics: A New York Times Learning Network Lesson Plan Unit

<http://www.nytimes.com/learning/teachers/lessons/econ.html>

55 lesson plans developed to be used in conjunction with articles from the New York Times. Although you are required to pay for the Times articles, the lessons can be adapted for use with other newspapers and different forms of media.

Issues in Global Education

<http://www.globaled.org/issues/160/index.html>

A brief introduction to the many views surrounding issues of global trade and the WTO's role in the global economy. Included is a report on the need and value of the WTO by Director General Mike Moore, an overview of trade issues and the context in which the WTO operates; three classroom activities; and a variety of additional viewpoints regarding the World Trade Organization.

Maquila Solidarity Network

<http://www.maquilasolidarity.org>

The Maquila Solidarity Network (MSN) is a Canadian network promoting solidarity with groups in Mexico, Central America, and Asia organizing in maquiladora factories and export processing zones to improve conditions and win a living wage. The MSN website contains many action tools and resources that can be used in the classroom.

OXFAM Canada

<http://www.oxfam.ca/education/index.htm>

Founded in 1963, Oxfam Canada is a non-profit international development organization that supports community programmes in food security, health, nutrition and democratic development with an emphasis on working with women.

People's Century – PBS Series

<http://www.pbs.org/wgbh/peoplescentury/teachers/index.html>

Classroom resources to accompany a 26-part PBS series looking at the world economy over the course of the 20th century. The teacher's guide for the last episode, "Fast Forward," deals with issues like changing role of government, free-market ideology, the gap between rich and poor, human rights and human endurance and the rise of the global economy.

Planet Work – PBS show

<http://www.pbs.org/livelihood/planetnetwork/classroom/guide1.html>

Part of a PBS series called livelihood, Planet Work is a two part show that zig-zags the globe (US, Italy, Brazil, Ghana, Cambodia and Singapore) to find out how people are dealing with globalisation's effects on work life. Included on the site are classroom resources to accompany a class viewing as well as follow-up activities.

The Polaris Institute

http://www.polarisinstitute.org/edu_tools/edu_index.html

Initially, the idea of the Polaris Institute was conceived in 1996 following a decade of social movement building in opposition to two major free trade agreements that dramatically restructured the economy and society here in Canada. The pivotal lesson that emerged from this social movement experience was that transnational corporations had effectively secured control over the reins of public policy making in this country [and elsewhere] to the point where citizens were becoming politically disenfranchised.

The Victoria International Development Education Association (VIDEA)

<http://www.videa.ca/resources.html>

VIDEA has been involved in the promotion and delivery of global education in Victoria and the Southern Vancouver Island area since 1977. VIDEA has actively engaged teacher, students, youth and the general public in learning about and becoming engaged in international issues with a particular focus on the need for socially just and sustainable global development.

WTO in the Classroom

<http://www.washington.edu/wto/classroom/curriculum.html>

Curriculum for grades 6-12 produced by the Center for International Business and Research at the University of Washington, in conjunction with the World Affairs Council of Seattle. The curriculum, entitled "Approaching WTO Education: How to Bring WTO into Your Classroom by Engaging Students in International Trade Disputes," was designed to help teachers introduce their students to the concepts of international trade and the WTO to help them better understand the WTO Ministerial Conference in Seattle Washington.

Global Teachnet

<http://www.rpcv.org/pages/sitepage.cfm?id=268>

The lessons in this website are suitable for high school level and higher. They were written by Dr. Angene Wilson and her graduate students at the University of Kentucky.

FactualCanada in a Global Economy

<http://www.pakistaneconomist.com/database1/Industry/Ind175.htm>

An article by Navroz Surani from a 2001 issue of the Pakistan Economist looking at the impacts and implications of Canada's growing economic integration with the United States.

Global Consumer Culture

<http://www.indiana.edu/~wanthro/consum.htm>

A page of links to other resources on global consumer culture and global environmental issues.

Global Economy 101

<http://www.globalexchange.org/economy/econ101/>

A site put together by a group called Global Exchange that includes links, essays that explore globalisation and a primer on economic literacy (“Why GDP is an inappropriate measure of Economic Health”).

Humanizing the Global Economy

<http://www.aflcio.org/publ/speech2002/sp0129.htm>

Transcript of a speech – “The Moral and Human Dimensions of Work and Workers in the Global Economy” – made by John J. Sweeney in Washington, DC on January 29, 2002

Introduction to Micro-economics

<http://vlad1mir.tripod.com/index.htm>

A very accessible introduction to micro-economics that breaks concepts down into manageable, easy to understand chunks.

International trade case studies

<http://www.portseattle.org/portandyou/educ/a02highintl.htm>

As part of their page on careers in international trade and transportation, the Port of Seattle has collected a number of different trade case studies for high school students. The case studies range from dealing with trade tariffs to organic farming. Each one includes a student and teacher copy for download.

The Progress Project

<http://www.progressproject.org/webcasts.html>

The Progress Project was an effort to engage citizens, scholars, leaders and policymakers in the public and private sectors in a vital debate on economic, social, technological and environmental progress. The site consists of transcripts of lectures made by experts on a variety of different topics from the WTO in Seattle to debating the limits of growth to an interview with former president Jimmy Carter.

Teaching About the Global Economy Using the Internet

<http://www.ny.frb.org/pihome/educator/tchglobeco.html>

A series of units put together by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Intended for use in grades 9-12 the units cover foreign trade, foreign exchange, economic and monetary union, developing nations and current global economic events. All units are large PDF files available for download.

Teaching Global Issues

<http://www.newint.org/index4.html>

Teaching resources provided by the New Internationalist include political cartoons from past issues and crossword puzzles as well links to other useful resources.

Teaching Guide for Globalisation Essays

http://www.ssrc.org/sept11/essays/teaching_resource/tr_globalisation.htm

A teaching guide put together by the Social Science Research Council. Developed in the wake of September 11, the guide introduces students to the economic, political and social manifestations of globalisation.

Teaching Real-World Political Economy: Simulating a WTO Negotiation

<http://www.mcb.unco.edu/FacultyStaff/WorkingPaperSeries/Jares/wto%20sim%20paper%2010-29-01.pdf>

A PDF version of an academic paper by Timothy E. Jares that explores the complexity of teaching political economy in the classroom through a simulated WTO negotiation.

Understanding the face of Globalisation

<http://www.uwm.edu/Dept/CIE/Resources/globalisation/globalled.html#globallessons>

Developed for the Center for International Education, this site has links to a number of different sites relating to globalisation. Included is a list of 10 sites with already developed lesson plans that range from World Trade-Offs: Exploring the Effects of World Trade on Your City to Bonded for Life: Exploring the Modern Slave Trade to In the Global Ballpark: Debating the Globalisation of Baseball.